

MAKING A MEDICINE TAKES BLOOD, SWEAT, AND PATIENT VOLUNTEERS.

It's not just scientists who make a new medicine. Every year, 50,000 patients volunteer to be a part of our clinical trial programs. Without their brave decision to help us, we could never prove that an experimental medicine is ready for the world. Improving patient health drives everything we do, but everything we do would be impossible without their participation and support.

Patient volunteers are only one part of a medicine's journey. Get the full story at Pfizer.com/discover
